Falsification is the alteration of information, documents, or other evidence in order to mislead. Examples of academic dishonesty of this form would include but not be restricted to:

- fabrication or falsification of data, analysis, citations or other information for assignments, exams, speeches or any other academic work;
- forgery or unauthorized alteration of official documents, credentials, or signatures;
- misrepresentation of one’s academic accomplishments, experiences, credentials, or expertise;
- withholding information related to admission, transfer credits, disciplinary actions, financial aid, or academic status
- submitting the same work to more than one class without the authorization of the instructors
