On the welcome screen, you will sometimes see maintenance notices. Do not ignore these notices.

Click on "Students" to view your menu options.

This is the main Student menu in WebAdvisor. Familiarize yourself with this menu; you will be using it frequently as a Westmont student.

To view your program evaluation, select "Program Evaluation" under the Academic Profile menu.

Select your Active Program (as a new student, you will automatically be assigned an Undecided program, until you officially declare your major) and hit submit.

OR…

Select the "What if I changed my program of study?" "What If?" (for short) feature allows to you to view requirements from any major at Westmont College (do not select your Undecided program). Selecting a "What If" option will not permanently change your Program Evaluation, nor does it officially declare your major. The "What If" feature gives you the opportunity to view the particular requirements for each major at Westmont. The "What If" feature is especially helpful to new transfer students and will show how some of your transfer courses will apply towards your potential Westmont major.

Transfer students, if you feel you have earned transfer courses that will meet your intended Westmont major requirements; you will need to get department chair approval using a Re-evaluation of Transfer Credit form. The Student Records Office cannot grant major credit for transfer courses.

If you are running a "What If" evaluation, you will be asked to select your catalog year. Your catalog year is the year you entered Westmont College and will not change throughout your tenure here. Incoming 2021 students should pick the 2020-2021 Catalog year.

Section 3 lists your three writing- or speech-intensive requirements. Westmont students are required to take at least three writing- or speech-intensive courses.

3:A Inside the Major must be a writing- or speech-intensive course inside of your declared major. This requirement will not appear as satisfied until you have officially declared your major which you will need to do by the second semester of your sophomore year.

3:B Outside the Major must be a writing- or speech-intensive course outside of your declared major. If you declare a second major, your "outside the major" writing- or speech-intensive course will need to be within your first declared major.

3:C Writing for the Liberal Arts is typically satisfied by taking an English Composition course at the college level, such as ENG-002 Composition at Westmont. ENG-002 Composition is a great way to prepare new students for writing at the college level. Strong writing skills are essential for success at Westmont College. International students and students for whom English is not their first language are strongly encouraged to take ENG-002 Composition as soon as possible during their time at Westmont.

A qualifying SAT or ACT score will allow a student to take any writing- or speech-intensive course instead of ENG-002 Composition to meet this requirement.

Students can also satisfy this requirement with a:

- Transfer a comparable composition course from another institution (pending review and approval);
- An AP-Literature & Composition or AP-Language & Composition score of 4 or higher;
- An IB English A1 score of 5 or higher.

Section 4 Common Skills embodies skills that all Westmont's students must have a solid understanding in before graduating.

- There are 4 ways to satisfy 4A English Competency; 1) a student may take ENG-002 Composition or comparable transfer course, or 2) receive a score of 4 or better on AP-Language & Composition or AP-Literature & Composition, or 3) receive a score of 5 or better on IB English A1, or 4) receive a score of 610 or above on the SAT Evidence-Based Reading and Writing section or a score of 10 or higher in the ACT English Writing sub-score.
- 4B Quantitative & Analytical Reasoning is typically satisfied by a math or science course. Please review the GE Courses document to see course options.
- 4C Modern/Foreign Language is satisfied by taking one semester of language other than English.
  - If you have already had at least one semester of a language (either at the high school or college level), do not register for the first semester of that language (-001); you will be removed from the course and asked to register for a higher level (-002 or higher).
